The Regional Market is comprised of growers in a seven county region and is the major center of both farmers' market and food wholesale activity in the Central New York area. The Market was planned and built between 1935 and 1938. All of the original buildings are still being used and improved.

Bell & Spina consulted with the State Historic Preservation Office to restore and update the Market to its former prestige. The end result established the Market as safe, efficient, and user friendly.
